

NOTIFICATION OF 2012, 2013 AND 2014 FEE CHANGES FOR BOILERS, PRESSURE VESSELS & REFRIGERATION, ELECTRICAL, ELEVATING DEVICES AND GAS

May 25, 2012

From January to May 2012, the BC Safety Authority has been consulting with clients and stakeholders on the proposed fee changes for 2012-2014. To all that participated in the consultation process, we want to express our appreciation for your interest, time and insight. After reviewing the findings of the consultation process, the BC Safety Authority has decided to move forward with the following fee changes:

- 2012: A 3% fee increase effective August 27, 2012
- 2013: A 3% fee increase effective January 1, 2013
- 2014: A 3% fee increase effective January 1, 2014

Please refer to the attached documents for a detailed account of the fee consultation findings and the fee schedules for each year. As well, the notification and information can be found on the BC Safety Authority website: <http://safetyauthority.ca/page/fee-notification-2012-2014>

One additional fee change of note is in the Fee Schedule: Gas that relates to changes in the contractor installation permit for certain gas appliance replacements (dryers, ranges/range tops, wall ovens, and barbecues). This fee structure change has been made to better align our fees to the service provided for the lower risk work of replacing certain gas appliances and responds to client feedback.

A thorough review to simplify our fee structure is presently taking place and the BC Safety Authority will announce and invite feedback on the proposed changes during 2012. After review and consideration of consultation feedback, notification of approved fee structure changes will be provided later this year for effect in early 2013.
